Pam,

I just received and updated engineering report with the new information incorporated you sent the beginning of the month. The fugitive air release during manufacturing has been reduced greatly (down to 22 from 1700) and the water releases during processing were revised. I am waiting on the exposure report to confirm the new information mitigated water releases. Once that is done I need an updated HH report that calculates the gen pop risk from the exposure report.

I do not have a time frame for the Human Health report to be updated I can talk to you about that process if you want to call.

Jeff

Hi Jeff,
Sorry to be a bother but I have a business meeting later today and they will want to know the status update on the PMN.
Is there any update that you can give me?
Thank you,
Pam
